Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Many items in the grist of the day's news would loom larger to public interest, were it not for such a colossal event as the Battle of Stalingrad. To this modern world that battle is what the Siege of Troy was to the ancient. In its vast proportions, its pitiless, grinding carnage and its significance to the rest of the world, it far overshadows any strugdle in recorded history. The world stands aghast and feaful as Van Bock and Timoshenko throw human reserves, machines and munitions into the flaming inferno. Nowhere in the annals of man can be found so huge a hell on earth.

Everywhere in the world there are privations and hardships imposed by the war. Everywhere adjustments are being made, and, in this country, very tardily and inadequately. When will the home folks far from the battle lines, begin to match the sacrifices they demand of their fighting men? No one knows how many will fail to return from this crusade of democracies against the primeval beast, but too many, apparently, do not give a continental. One bright young girl of seventeen loudly laments that due to war conditions she can no longer buy a pair of red shoes. Dear young wrenwit your brother's shoes in Africa are gory red. But he is just thankful to be alive. Try to content yourself with other colors. A young matron grieves that she can no longer buy elastic garter girdles. How sad. But the rubber saved your cousin's life when he parachuted into the middle of the Pacific. Do bear up under this cruel privation. Only a little while ago rolled hose was the style.

But we do find men and women, especially women whose sons or husbands are in the fighting forces, who are doing their utmost for victory. The wives and mothers of service men in some instances are moving out of such cities as Los Angeles, San Diego and around San Francisco bay. They rent themselves dwellings in towns and villages where housing demand is nil. Their homes are then rented to workers in plane factories and shipyards. That is a real service, and to women who love their homes, a real sacrifice. That is one movement the State Council of Defense is fostering with increasingly good results.

"My business will be ruined," a merchant tells a Selective Service Board, "If I am called to the colors." A young cattleman, just getting a start in beef producing, declares: "I'll have to sell my entire herd." A young woman who had been divorced, but has found, since Pearl Harbor, an ideal stepfather for her two kiddies, pleads: "He takes better care of my children than their real father did. If he goes into the army I don't know what will become of them."

But the merchant marches. His business is not ruined, yet—with the old man placed in charge of it, it will probably show little profit for the duration. The young cattleman steps down from his saddle, shoulders a rifle, and his wife takes over. The ideal stepfather gives up a lucrative job in the shipyards, quits hiding behind petticoats and does his duty at the front. Probably none of these men are unpatriotic but none of them did much thinking about their country.

One has to visualize the Battle of Stalingrad to become humble. Women in a factory putting in place the last piece of armor on their tanks, then getting into them and driving out to the battle front to charge the German horde. Male civilians, the very old and the teen-age youngsters fighting alongside Timoshenko's veterans, with whatever arms come to hand, bottles filled with gasoline, pitchforks, axes, scythes. They are a people who love their country. Let this fact, written in their blood, forgive all those faults, that a little while ago, we found with their way of life.

Beside the sacrifices made by the Russians, and the English, not to mention the enforced sacrifices made by conquered peoples throughout Europe, we in America are sitting on golden thrones, lapped by luxury. Let us try to see with the mind's eye the swollen stomachs of starving children; desperate young mothers doomed to exile and slavery, hurling themselves and their babies from the high buildings in Paris; and the wounded men, fighting on with one arm, or one leg. Then let us do our part thankfully and humbly. For it is hardly probable that we shall ever descend so deep into war's hell as other peoples have.

Ainsley Fouyer Aids In Solomon Island Recapture

Ainsley Fouyer, Nevada City youth with the United States Marines, was a member of the fighting Marines group which recaptured the Solomon Islands.

Fouyer, in a letter to Mrs. Carl J. Tobiassen, said: "We sure mopped up on them."

The letter read:

"Just a few lines to let you know how things are with Japs and I. I guess you have read about us taking back the Solomon Islands. We sure mopped up on them. I came out OK and am hoping to get a crack and some more pretty soon. I haven't heard or seen Max Ruth to know how he came out but am hoping he came out OK, too. He was on a different ship coming across.

"This is the first chance I've had to write since we've been on land and am hoping to hear from you all soon. I probably won't be able to see you and the family or some time but I am thinking of all of you. We had a pretty good trip coming across and we also got quite a few submarines, too. It sure seemed good to get some action and get on land again.

"There was a Japanese bank on the Solomon Islands and we get some Jap money. I'll find out if I can send you any as I think you would like to see some. I am sending you a poem that a sailor made up and it is pretty good. It describes our battle pretty well. Well, Mildred, I hope every one is OK. and say hello to everybody for me. Tell Bub I'll write him as soon as I can and say hello to Smiles for me."

The poem written by the sailor follows:

THE BATTLE OF THE SOLOMONS

I saw it all from where I stood
And there's a tale to tell—
The Battle of the Solomons
Or how the Japs caught hell.

Etched against the dawning sun
The cruisers belched out flame
Again, again they took their toll
They put the Japs to shame.

They fired a dump, they fired the shore
They made the Islands shake
With first one burst, then countless more,
These Islands we would take.
The orange tracers lit the course of every missle true,
They hit the Japanese with force
For all of us and you.

No casualty for us as yet
Marines began to land.
The Island burned, the sky aflame
The battle well in hand.

That night a fleet came forth
Intending annihilation,
But you can't beat the ones who fight
For this so glorious nation.

Our batteries roared, their cruisers flamed,
Destroyers raced around them.
The sky was lit with lightning flares,
As many salvos found them.

And then 'twas o'er, and all was still
We had our losses, some.
The Japs had theirs and now for them
The worst is yet to come.
Bluejackets and Marines keep on
Until the battle's done.
The victory ours with arms laid down
And peace at last is won.

Oh! God of might and right and faith.
Reveal yourself beside us
And we will fight for right and home
Forever while you guide us.

Nevada City, Grass Valley Protest WPB Intention To Close Gold Mines

The Nevada City and Grass Valley Chambers of Commerce yesterday dispatched telegrams to the War Production Board, pointing out the proposed closing of gold mines to make men available for copper and other essential mineral mines would not materially benefit the war effort while on the other hand would cause "unemployment and the commercial death" of these gold mine communities.

The action was taken by the two booster groups following word from Washington that War Production Chairman Donald Nelson was "at the point of signing" an order closing the gold mines. The order, the WPB believes, would release thousands of miners for copper, lead and zinc mines, where labor is sorely needed.

However ,a spokesman for WPB's mining branch recently estimated not more than 2,000 might be available because of present depressed conditions in the mining industry.

The Nevada City and Grass Valley Chambers of Commerce, knowing the facts, pointed out in telegrams that only a few would voluntarily accept employment in copper mines—that most of the men now employed in the gold mines here are unemployable elsewhere because of health and age.

If the order closing the gold mines is issued the manpower commission is expected to take action through the United States Employment Service setting up orderly procedure for transporting workers to their new jobs.

If the order is signed the Lava Cap Mines are not expected to be affected.

The Nevada City Rotary Club also dispatched a telegram to Nelson protesting the proposed shutdown of the gold mines.

The text of the telegram follows:

"Closing of gold mines would not achieve purpose intended so far as Nevada County, largest gold producing gold area in California, is concerned. With one exception all mines in this district are practically working on maintenance status now, as miners working are too old to be transferred to other districts to work in copper or other essential metal mines. Respectfully ask you to make survey of mines before ordering them closed. Order will mean mines will be flooded and cannot be opened when present emergency is over. Hundreds of miners who have left this district to enter armed services or to work on defense projects will have no jobs when peace comes and they return to their homes here. Out of 2,600 miners employed in county before war started only 1,000 now left. Many of these going within few weeks.

"Nevada City Chamber of Commerce

'George W. Gildersleeve, president.

"H. F. Sofge, Secretary."

The Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce telegram follows:

"We believe that due to the workingmen of the community leaving here for employment elsewhere there are not more than twenty miners here who will voluntarily accept employment in the copper mines.

"Many of those employed by virtue of health and age are unemployable elsewhere and after the war will not be reemployed in these mines in competition with returning younger men.

"Closing of mines will result in unemployment and the commercial death of the community, which definnitely will cause more harm than help to the war effort.

"Most of the working men of this community capable of seeking employment in the war industries have left this community and done so. We believe it more desirable that the problem be met directly through an occupational draft in which workmen may be selected individually wherever employed on basis of health and ability rather than eliminating employment hoping that a few fit and qualified men may drift to a desired employment."

LOCAL YOUTH ACCEPTED FOR NAVAL TRAINING

Paul Chesebro of Nevada City has passed his hysical examination and will be sworn in at Auburn on October 10th under the V-1 material program of the Naval Officer Procurement office at the Placer Junior College.

Eight men have been sworn into service under this plan, including Jack McDonald of Grass Valley. Louis R. Mitchell will be sworn in at the same time as Chesebro and five other Placer JC students.

Captain C. L. Arnold, Naval Officer Procurement director, has written Earl Crabbe, representative of the armed forces at Placer Junior College, praising the type of young men applying themselves under the V-1 program. The letter read:

"We are pleased to receive a report from our Lieutenant Harry Meyer, U. S. Naval Reserve, describing the fine type of young men from your college who applied for enlistment in the V-1 Program at the Sacramento Recruiting Station.

"Our medical department has reported that your boys qualified physically 100%. This is a most excellent record, as the Navy physical standards for commissioned officers are very rigid.

"We wish to express our appreciation for the time and effort you are devoting to the United States Navy Accredited College Program and for the excellent class of youth your institution is directing to this office."

SISTER ASKS LETTERS IN DOLAN ESTATE

Mrs. William Walthers has filed a petition in the superior court here seeking letters of administration for the probate of the estate of the late John F. (James) Dolan, well known Nevada City resident, who died on September 5th.

The petition sets forth that Dolan left a will dated 1941 leaving his entire estate to his wife but Mrs. Dolan died prior to her husband's death and a new will was never made.

The petition lists all surviving relatives and sets forth the value of the personal property of the deceased, including stock, furniture, automobile, cash in the bank, and rental value of real estate, is $9,302.31.

The deceased was a retired wire chief of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company and at the time of his death possessed $7,440 in telephone company stock.

METHODIST GROUP WILL HOLD MEETING HERE NEXT MONDAY

A regular meeting of the Placer-Nevada Methodist Ministerial Association will be held at the Methodist Church here Monday with Rev. David Ralston of the local church presiding.

The visitors will be served a luncheon at noon by the ladies of the Nevada City church.

An election of officers will be held. Rev. Ralston is the retiring president. Rev. Clifford Ford of Roseville will be the principal speaker at the meeting.

Mrs. Florence Hill of Alameda, formerly Miss Florence Deettken of Grass Valley was a Nevada City visitor Tuesday. Mrs. Hill visited mining claims in the Blue Tent district which belonged to her husband's family. The late V. G. Bell, former superintendent of the Milton Mining Company was the grandfather of Mr. Hill.

Father And Son Thrilled By Ride In Army "Jeep"

If a Nevada City youth is going about dreamy eyed and with apparent lack of interest in his school studies this week, the cause may be quickly traced. He may still be remembering his visit during a recent weekend to Sacramento Army Air Depot and his subsequent ride in a jeep.

The youth is Donald Steve Eden, 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Eden of Nevada City, who had the unusual experience as the guest of Captain Myron H. Willard, McClellan Field chaplain.

The visit was the climax of several months of correspondence between members of the Eden family, Chaplain Willard and men in the post hospital. It all began last Christmas when Mrs. Eden sent a big box of cookies and other goodies to the chaplain, who distributed the contents to hospitalized soldiers. Followed letters of thanks from Chaplain Willard and boys of the ward who had enjoyed her treat.

Several weeks later, Donald Steve forwarded a large scrapbook he had made of cartoons and human interest items concerning men in the service, to occupy idle hours of men in the post hospital. When Chaplain Willard penned thanks for this, he included an invitation to the youngster to visit the field if he ever came to Sacramento.

Sunday's visit was the fulfillment of this invitation — with mother, Donald Steve, little brother and dad, who works on Narrows Dam, arriving at the gate to be met by Chaplain Willard. After the foursome had had a personally conducted tour of the Field's non-industrial area, the chaplain asked Donald Steve how he'd like to ride in a jeep. The answer was obvious.

After the ride, taken by the youth and his father, Chaplain Willard's comment was, "You know, I think Mr. Eden enjoyed it as much—if not more—than the boy!"

PTA DEHYDRATING WILL BE CARRIED ON AT FASHION SHOP

The Nevada City Elementary Parent Teachers Association has obtained the Native Sons Building at Pine and Commercial Streets, formerly occupied by the Rose Fashion Shop, as a center for dehydrating fruits and vegetables for the elementary school lunch program.

Mrs. L. G. Lagesan, president of the PTA, announces the high school is making two dehydrators to use in preparing the food for future use.

The PTA is asking all those who have surplus fruits and vegetables to donate them to the program. Call 219-W and some one will call for the produce.

The program of dehydrating has reached proportions almost beyond control of the local PTA and that organization is asking for volunteers to prepare the fruit and vegetables for dehydrating.

So far 90 pounds of string beans and nine boxes of pears have been dehydrated.

Dr. J. B. Hardy was a business visitor in Nevada City Monday. He is a former resident of Alleghany and now operates a sanitarium near Dutch Flat.

HUNTER FINED FOR LEAVING CAMP FIRE UNATTENDED

It cost A. J. Smikahl of Loma Rica, Yuba County, $50 for leaving his camp fire unattended.

Smikahl was deer hunting in the Washington Junction area. He was apprehended by Game Warden Earl Hiscox.

When he appeared before Justice of the Peace George Gildersleeve the fine of $50 was imposed.

Caught in the Riffles

One Nevada City woman had a perfect right to ignore her housework today and glue her ear to a radio. She is Mrs. Jim Barry and her cousin, Ernie Bonham, was on the mound for the New York Yankees in the second game of the World Series.

The Lava Cap Mines officials and employees were pleasantly surprised six months ago when without solicitation the Lava Cap Mines were granted a priority rating the same as the shipyards and other defense industries. The Selby smelter solicited the rating for the local mine on the ground the Lava Cau concentrates were essential in the smelting of lead. Now, an order impends closing gold and silver mines. But again the Lava Cap receives a break because the essential flux is still needed and the order will not effect this gold and silver producer. The only other source of the lead smelting flux is from Canada so it appears the Lava Cap is set to operate for the duration. Miners are fairly steady at the Lava Cap properties because they know they are aiding in the war effort. The Lava Cap crew is about only 30 short of normal.

A note from Eddie Powell:

"Here I am in the hospital with bad eyes. May get a C. M. D., Medical Discharge. I hope I don't. Like the Navy very much. Could not make the Marines on account of my eyes."

Powell wrote from the U. S. Naval Hospital in San Diego.

The way men are being taken into the armed forces it may not be long before those at home may have to double upon work. Every industry reports a shortage of men. Chief of Police Max Solaro showed his patriotism by filling in as a truck driver for the forest service on his two weeks vacation. Now Ernie Young, city steet employee, is working at the Lava Cap while he is on his two weeks vacation from city duty.

A precedent was believed broken when the Empire Mine in Grass Valley hired a Negro to work underground. In the memory of old time miners he is the first Negro to ever work underground in the mines in this area. The Empire also employs a Chinese underground but that is nothing new. Nevada Cityans can remember when Henry Yuen was employed underground at the Murchie Mine here.

Thirty-thirty caliber rifle bullets are so scarce some deer hunters are reportedly offering $1 per shell. Topping that, one deer hunter gave $25 for a box of 24 30-30 shells in Truckee last week. . . Rex Robinson, currently employed at the Lava Cap and father of two children, will be one of a group of Nevada City miners who will leave this month for employment in Hawaii. Jack Kemp, formerly manager of the Standard Service Station here and manager of the station at Lake Tahoe during the summer, hopes to become a United States Marine. He left here yesterday to enlist.

State Forest Ranger William Sharp doesn't pursue his duties armed with a revolver or any other weapon but Martin Katrich, 54, a native of Yugoslavia, will vouch for the fact he doesn't need anything beside his quick wittedness and football tackling ability.

Katrich was picked up by Sharp on suspicion of setting fires in the Chicago Park district. At that time Katrich apparently harbored the idea of escaping but after a short run he was captured.

Then when Katrich was brought to the forestry headquarters near here for questioning he made another dart for liberty. This time Sharp wasted no time in mastering the situation. With a flying tackle he brought Katrich to the ground. Katrich was a humble prisoner after that. He was taken to the county jail and later brought before Justice of the Peace Charles Morehouse in Grass Valley on a charge of setting a fire on property not belonging to him without a permit. He was given a 30 day jail sentence.

MUDDLED THINKING

The events of war time, which is by its nature an abnormal time, move so swiftly that it is difficult to comprehend new situations as they arise. A striking case is provided by action of the State Chamber of Commerce in opposing the initiative measure to repeal the state income tax.

In its detailed recommendation against income tax repeal, the Chamber of Commerce wholly ignored the two most salient facts. These are, first, that the state, now war-tax rich, no longer has the slightest fiscal need for income tax revenue; and second, that the national government is increasing the federal income tax and all other possible taxes to the limit of the public's ability to pay in the process of financing the war effort. Those facts are hard and pressing upon the minds of tax-burdened Californians. But the Chamber of Commerce passes them over to object to repeal on technical and theoretical grounds as follows:

"The initiative process shouldn't be applied to taxes—taxes are the legislature's business. The initiative would prevent the legislature from re-enacting the income tax should it wish to do so. Repeal would benefit only one group of taxpayers. The initiative would set a precedent for possible action on other tax measures by vote of the people."

All that adds up to an amazing display of muddled thinking that can only be explained by the confusion and pace of the times. It would be senseless for the people to vote income tax repeal by an initiative if the measure would permit the legislature to re-enact the tax at its next session! The power to tax is the power to destroy—and it is indeed naive to question the wisdom of permitting the people, in a period of emergency to have a direct voice in exercising some control over taxation that is penalizing and unneeded. Nor could income tax relief be termed "group" relief, these days, since income taxes this year must hit—and hit hard—virtually every man and woman on a payroll.

This appears a case where the democratic value of the initiative process will be demonstrated. Not by theorizing, but by applying common sense to the matter of a burdensome tax held over from easier days of peace, the people of California will think this issue through and vote their will into force on November 3.

35 MEANS 35

The speed limit for motor vehicles becomes 35 miles per hour effective today, and that means just what it says, 35 miles per hour.

The lowered maximum is requested by the federal government as a war-time measure to save rubber and keep automobiles in operation until such time as synthetic tires can be manufactured for civilian use. Anyone who fails to drive his car 35 miles or less is deliberately placing his country in jeopardy and playing into the hands of the enemy.

For weeks the maximum speed limit has been 40 miles per hour. But it hasn't been observed. Patriotic citizens have conformed to the 40-mile maximum, only to have less patriotic citizens drive by them as if they were standing still. Such driving is more than unpatriotic. It verges on treason. The motorist who refuses to obey voluntarily the requests of the government for savings in tires and gasoline invites mandatory restrictions and faces the further prospect of being held in contempt by his fellow citizens.

The rubber shortage is more than a serious blow to the victory hopes of the United Nations, it has created a desperate situation which within a few months may keep war workers from their jobs and deprive the fightin gmen overseas of the needed arms and equipment they must have to win their battles.

America has become dependent on motor vehicle transportation. Every tire must be conserved to the utmost to make it last for the duration and until victory is achieved.

Slowing down to 35 miles per hour is only a minor sacrifice to make in order to help achieve victory. Starting today it is expected that every motorist will make 35 miles per hour his maximum speed, and those who do not can expect to receive the derisive toots of more patriotic motorists.

We can win this war, by doing what we are told and by conforming to any and all voluntary restrictions we are asked to place on ourselves.

MORE THAN A PLATFORM

The Democratic state central committee, in advertisements signed by Assemblyman Alfred W. Robertson, chairman and George R. Reilly, vice chairman, is boosting, not Governor Culbert L. Olson, the candidate for state's chief executive, but the platform recently drawn by the Democratic party in convention in Sacramento.

The platform has been made broad enough to promise about everything but the voter has long since learned to pay little attention to campaign promises. What the voter wants is not more words but effective leadership and that hasn't been supplied by Governor Olson and his administration.

The Democratic state convention was a squabble from start to finish, during which unity was completely lacking. Such discord cannot provide the smooth conduct of state affairs that must be obtained if California is to play the fullest part in the victory drive. It takes more than a platform to straighten out California, it takes a leader.

Such a leader will be found in Earl Warren, the Republican nominee for governor and the man who almost won in the primary.

THE BUILDER AND THE TALKER

Henry J. Kaiser is an American builder. He has built dams. Now he is building ships. He plans to build airplanes.

Dr. Hans Elias, of Middlesex University, Massachusetts, has never built anything material in America. But he is known as an academic theorist and abstract thinker.

The other day the papers carried an account of the result of some of Professor Elias' thinking, put by the professor in these words:

"After the war the masses of the people will be impoverished by the burdens which war imposes upon everyone. There will be no cars, radios, washing machines or refrigerators. There will be practically no export industry because countries abroad are exhausted. There will be practically no import trade because we shall no longer be wealthy enough to buy more than we need."

The paper that day also carried news that Mr. Kaiser, whose Richmond shipyard had startled the building world in August by launching a ship in 24 days after laying the keel, had slashed that record in his Portland yard with the incredible feat of launching a huge 10,500 ton cargo vessel just 10 days after its keel was laid! Mr. Kaiser, who is so busy eternally building things that he hasn't time to talk much, said this:

"What we have done is just a prelude to the great production era that will rebuild the world after this war is won and over."

Men of the Henry J. Kaiser stamp are always few and precious; men of the Hans Elias stamp are myriad and insignificant. Thousands of the latter said Fulton's steamboat was a joke, that Washington was a fool to face England's armies, that Lincoln could'nt preserve the Union, that Wright's heavier than air machine was an idiot's contraption. The works of the builders stand. The words of the talkers are forgotten.

What Henry J. Kaiser and men like him accomplish in this war and in post-war reconstruction will be long remembered; what Professor Elias and men like him say will be as ephemeral as their gloomy, visionless words.

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

I MISSED getting my hair cut this morning on account of the scrap collection.

When I climbed into the barber chair, Ray says to me:

"Sorry, Joe. Ain't got time for you today. We're closing up this morning at ten."

And then I remembered. This was the day the town had agreed to drop everything – and I mean everything – and collect scrap for Uncle Sam.

Yes sir, the drugstore, the corner garage, Sam Abernethy's general store – every place in town except the post office – closed up tight today from 10 to 5.

And you ought to see the result piled up in front of the fire house. One hundred and fifty tons of metal that had been lying around in attics, cellars and back yards of our town since Charlie Jenkins' great-grandfather joined up with the Texas Rangers.

That's almost 200 lbs. of metal for every man, woman and child in our town. Just shows you—when American citizens go out to do a job for Uncle Sam they do it right.

Judge Cunningham and I were talking about it this evening, sitting on the front porch and having a sociable beer together.

We agreed that the way this town went all out to collect scrap was a pretty good illustration of how Democracy works. No need to crack a whip . . . no need to pass a law . . . just self-determined folks working hand in hand to get a job done for their own people.

Because from where I sit, that's what we're fighting for—the right to work together—of our own accord. To do the job because we want to, not because somebody tells us to. And when the job's done, to relax as we see fit.

And the Judge agreed. He pointed out that one of the things that help folks get together is just what we were doin' now.

It's great, after a good day's work, to be able to have a chat and a glass of beer if you want to.

ZOOT SUITS OF STRAW

News in Rhyme Over KJBS Daily at 12:30 P. M.

Written by Harley M. Leete, Jr.

Mussolini's soldiers, famed for advances,
That frequently reverse,
Have accepted a few too many chances,
To retreat from bad to worse.

So the Fascists word is none too good,
And oft the truth abuses,
But here's a story that understood,
To tell of Russian ruses.

A Roman journal claims that much,
Of Italy's Russian trouble,
Is caused by camouflage and such—
Russ clothed in hay and rubble.

They say Russ wore zoot suits of straw,
That looked like stacks of hay.
And that's against Il Duce's law—
Rome claims it's not fair play.

The Italian soldiers, rather young,
Didn't seem to know this trick,
So, apparently, were badly stung,
When the hay advanced, and quick!

Well, that's one of Musso's tales:
Please take with grain of salt,
For the Roman press group never fails,
When their army's found at fault.

The next time Russ advanced to slaughter,
The Fascists, much surprised,
Found Russian troops could walk on water—
Or that's what Rome surmised.

After this last Russian prank,
Which made the Fascists nervous;
The found a bridge of beam and plank,
Below the water's surface.

Russ fighters also used small floats,
That fit around the waste,
Which took the place of scows and boats,
For crossing streams in haste.

Mussolini's legionnaires,
Won't have even lingering force,
If they're caught so often unawares,
By the Russians' Trojan horse.

The Roman eagle's in eclipse—
Whether our tale is true or not,
Tnd as the Russ its feather clips,
It puts the Axis on the spot!

SAVANT WARNS AGAINST QUICK PEACE TREATY

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—"After the war, there must be no peace settlement for several years, until the conditions of a real peace can arise, until the furious hatred of Germans and the Axis has subsided. During this period we should have a provisional world government, with a subordinate government for United Europe."

So declares Dr. Donald A. Piatt, professor of philosophy at the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

"This government will be the continuation of the United Nations government. It will deal with a host of pressing problems; repatriation, disarmament, police, the resumption of trade, allotment of food and raw materials, demobilization of men and industries, the reconstruction of devastated areas.

Necessity will teach a man, however slow he be, to be wise.

The best teacher one can have is necessity—La None.

Necessity of action takes away the fear of the act, and makes bold resolution the favorite of fortune.

MINING COUNTIES GIVE CONFIDENCE VOTE TO WARREN

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.— The shadow of a coming event—the election of Earl Warren as California's next governor—is boldly cast by an analysis of the primary vote which has just been completed by Warren's Northern California headquarters. Warren carried 31 of the state's 58 counties on the Democratic ticket.

In Solano county, for example, which embraces busy shipbuilding Vallejo where Democrats comprise 70 per cent of the county registration, Earl Warren polled 67 per cent of the total vote and even led Olson on the Democratic ticket by a vote of 4847 to 4455, the summary shows.

In Tulare county with its cotton belt and nearly a two to one Democratic registration, Warren captured 75 per cent of the total vote and led Olson on the Democratic ticket with a vote of 5461 to 4387. Warren's total vote in the county was 12,499.

San Mateo county was another to give evidence that labor is interested in efficient and economic government. With new shipyards and defense plants it has become heavily industrialized and has a heavy Democratic registration. Nevertheless Warren received a total of 29,930 votes to Olson's 7869. Warren's Democratic vote alone was 8,134.

In the Mother Lode country Warren captured overwhelmingly the six mountain mining counties of Sutter, Nevada, Amador, Calaveras, Tuolumne and Mariposa. In each county the registration is preponderantly Democratic but Warren led on the Democratic ticket in each of them—in Nevada county by a vote of 1657 to 1346; in Sutter county by a vote of 1620 to 873 where Warren captured 35 out of 39 precincts on the Democratic ticket and tied in another; in Amador county by a vote of 811 to 634 with Warren leading on the Democratic ticket in 18 out of 25 precincts; in Calaveras county by a vote of 1019 to 485 and Warren leading the Democratic ticket in 31 out of 34 precincts; in Tuolumne county by a vote of 1607 to 976 with Warren capturing 38 out of 48 precincts and in Mariposo county by a vote of 759 to 563 Warren capturing 16 out of 22 precincts.

Monterey on the coast, another heavily Democratic county, gave Warren a vote of 4110 to 3770 for Olson. Madera county, where the registration is better than two to one Democratic, gave Warren 1817 Democratic votes to 1596 for Olson. Colusa county in the Sacramento farm belt, another "Democratic" county voted a Democratic majority for Warren—1174 votes to Olson's 583. Warren led on the Democratic ticket in 25 out of 28 precincts. In Yuba county Warren received a total vote of 2752 to Olson's 794 winning on the Democratic side, where he carried all but 8 precincts in the county. Merced, also a two to one Democratic county, went non-partisan for Warren by giving him 3428 votes on the Democratic ticket to 3014 for Olson.

EDUCATORS TAKE SHARP INTEREST IN WARREN RACE

By CLEM WHITAKER

California teachers and educational leaders—always alert to possible danger to the schools during a period of upheaval, such as the present war emergency—have suddenly discovered that they have double reason to be interested in the outcome of the current contest for governor between Earl Warren and Culbert L. Olson.

In addition to the fact that the incoming governor will be called upon to cope with many urgency problems of vital importance to the schools as a result of dislocations occasioned by the war, the new state executive, during his first month in office, will have the appointment of seven members to the State Board of Education.

As a consequence, the new governor's appointees will constitute a majority of the ten-member state educational board throughout the coming four years, which are likely to be critical years for the whode educational system.

The interest of school leaders in the new appointments to the state board, which will be made in January, has been intensified by the Silver-Burdette textbook scandal which has kept Governor Olson's appointees on the educational body in hot water for most of their tenure. Four of Governor Olson's appointees to the board have not been confirmed by the senate and three other vacancies will occur as a result of term expirations before Janunary 15.

One extreme follows another in politics. During the primary gubernatorial campaign, Governor Olson undoubtedly suffered from blatant over-confidence on the part of his supporters.

Now the situation is completely reversed in view of Warren's strong primary showing, and a wave of defeatism has hit the Olson camp. Typifying the new defeatist attitude is the report that State Director of Public Works, Frank Clarke, one of the governor's right hand men, has arranged to give up his lease on his Sacramento penthouse, effective November 1.

The betting commissioners have made Tom Dewey a 3-to-1 favorite to win the governorship of New York state, according to latest advices.

When Big Jim Farley tipped over President Roosevelt's slate at the New York Democratic convention, he not only licked the Democratic Party (and his own candidate), for the New York polls indicate an almost certain GOP victory.

Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bolton and children, Miss Roberta Bolton and Tommy Bolton, of Nevada City and Red McKean of Colfax spent the past week end in Richmond where they visited Mr. Bolton's mother and other relatives.

On Tuesday Nevada City friends received a censored letter from Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Swift who are now in Alaska. Swift young mining engineer resided in Nevada City for some time and was employed in local and Grass Valley mines and will be remembered by many. His wife stated he is to teach in the University of Alaska.

Jake Deal of Alleghany spent Wednesday in Nevada City visiting his sister, Mrs. Al Williams and family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jackson, had as week end guests Mrs. Jackson's mother, Mrs. Frank Pearce and three sisters, Mrs. W. T. Riddle, Miss Ada Pearce, Mrs. E. M. Rodgers and daughter, Betty, all of Sacramento.

Robert Farmer, who has been with the Tahoe National Forest at White Cloud the past summer, has accepted employment at the local Miners Foundry which is engaged partly in war work.

Bob James, son of Mrs. Nance James of Nevada City is in San Francisco. He wrote his mother that he would join the marines and enter "boot camp" in San Diego on Monday.

Gordon Douglass, son of Byron Douglass of Boulder Street and C. Burkhart left Tuesday for Sacramento where they will attend school a week and return to be employed by the local Standard Oil stations.

A well-painted home will withstand the ravages of time and weather almost indefinitely. But don't forget that a well-painted home is not one painted with low-quality paint. It is one painted with good paint. For exterior painting, insist on Fuller Pure Prepared Paint—the finest all-purpose "house" paint made. It lasts. For all your paint needs, see a Fuller Paint Dealer.
